

Publication :	Today
Date :	25 November 2006
Journalist :	Denyse Tessensohn
Headline:	Say It Right

Say It Right

by Denyse Tessensohn

Winner!

"Dateline is often used instead of the right word "deadline".

For example: I have to meet the dateline.

The correct statement should be:

I have to meet the deadline. OR

The deadline was given to me.

A "deadline" is the day or time by which you should do something. The "dateline" is strictly the International Date Line (apart from a technical term for journalists), that more or less follows the 180° longitude and goes through Greenwich Village dividing one day artificially but usefully from another.

This week's winner is Celine Lee.

Congratulations!