SAY IT RIGHT

by Denyse Tessensohn

Monthly Challenge

A family has seven children, four boys and three girls. Your friend is one of the sons and you have not met any of his siblings. You would like to know where he is on the totem pole.

How would you phrase your question in the neatest way to elicit the information you seek? The best, not the first, entry will win — but please write in by Wednesday.

This interesting question was proposed by V Harish to whom a prize will be sent.

A book prize will be awarded for the best answer in this monthly Challenge. Please email us at sayitright@newstoday.com.sg by Wednesday.
