ABOUT BRITISH COUNCIL

Established for 65 years, the British Council (Singapore) has played a fundamental role in the development of English as one of the primary languages used in our society today. A firm grasp of the language is essential for the appreciation of beautiful works of fiction, poetry, and drama. Mastery of English also allows one to gain a competitive edge in his or her business and professional career, and not forgetting, it is a global language that transcends all continents, races, ages and gender.

This is the reason why the British Council has been proud to have been a long-established partner of the Speak Good English Movement, in more ways than one.

SELF-ASSESSMENT TEST AND SERIES OF WORKSHOPS FOR WORKING ADULTS

This year, our English teachers are producing a new Self-assessment Test that helps working adults assess their grammatical and vocabulary levels so they can better understand the areas where their competencies and weaknesses lie in. The British Council will also conduct a series of workshops in September that will guide working adults on the use of English.

INSPIRING TEACHER OF ENGLISH AWARD

The Teacher Development Centre (TDC) of the British Council (Singapore) also partners the Speak Good English Movement for the Inspiring Teacher of English Award. Every year, our professional Teacher Trainers form part of an observation and interviewing panel with ELIS Master Teachers that assesses the nominees for this prestigious award. The trainers look at the nominees' teaching approaches, their experience and notable achievements, such as how they weave new teaching methods into their lessons to make the learning journey a more exciting one for their students. The TDC has been training teachers in Singapore since 1968 and is currently involved in the Whole School Approach to Effective Communication initiative.

WEEKLY TIPS ON MINDEF'S INTRANET

In April, the Speak Good English Movement piloted a project with MINDEF. This involved publishing a series of weekly tips on the staff intranet, which proved to be a visible and effective platform for sending bite-sized tips.

The tips include common errors including:

- "With regards to" vs "with regard to"
- "Can I say please revert to me?"

Thus far, the tips have sparked a spirited discussion, with comments in support of this initiative and some staff requesting for tips on other common errors.

The Movement has plans to roll out this initiative to the rest of the ministries, statutory boards and interested private companies.

MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

The mission of MINDEF and the Singapore Armed Forces is to enhance Singapore's peace and security through deterrence and diplomacy, and should these fail, to secure a swift and decisive victory over the aggressor.

E-LEARNING COURSES FOR WORKING ADULTS

Young Working Adults face intense competition in today's workforce. To stand out from the rest, a young employee must be able to communicate effectively with good English, be it written or verbal. The use of good English is reflective of both the company's and the individual's image.

In support of the Speak Good English Movement, NLB Academy (NLBA) will be promoting the e-learn course "Cite it Right to Avoid Plagiarism", recommended for young working adults and tertiary students.

Through the interactive learning activities, young working adults can acquire useful skills such as note-taking, paraphrasing, identifying main points of an article, as well as how to cite correctly to avoid plagiarism.

These techniques enable young employees to practise good English in the workplace by keeping communication concise, yet effective in getting their messages across. Being able to cite adds professional credibility and authority to one's work.

NLB ACADEMY

The NLB Academy (NLBA) is the training arm of the National Library Board, Singapore. It was set up as a learning academy in April 2005 to offer continuous learning and competencies development to NLB staff, and to instil independent information-seeking skills in our learners.

We have courses for students from Primary to Tertiary level, adults, educators and library professionals. We also partner with interested people and organisations in producing media literacy, info-literacy and library professional development programmes. More information is available at <http://www.nlba.sg>

The target audience is working adults and the aim is to encourage them to focus on using a positive way of communication when interacting with others, so as to strengthen their relationship.

Our short-term goal with the Speak Good English Movement is to spark good English in professional settings everywhere by conducting public workshops in the heart of Singapore's communities. TEENS NETWORK CLUB ENGLISH MASTERS

In 2007, as part of our 5th year anniversary celebrations, the Teens Network Club initiated and organised a series of educational events. Till date, the Teens Network Club has organised educational events in several subject areas, aimed at outreaching and engaging students from both primary and secondary school level in meaningful, challenging and education-related activities.

Since the inauguration of our Educational Series, this is the third time that we have organised the English Quiz “Teens Network Club English Masters”, with support from the National University of Singapore (NUS) Literary Society. This year, the quiz will be held for Upper Primary (Pri 5-6) and Lower Secondary (Sec 1-2) school students.

The objectives of the event are to:

- (a) Create an opportunity for students to learn and experience the English language in a fun and interactive environment thus, generating interest in the subject; and
- (b) Engage teenagers through the participation in interesting and challenging activities.

We would be using word games such as Crossword puzzles, Word Search and picture identification to make it a fun and memorable experience for the students. You may find out more about the event and Teens Network Club at www.facebook.com/tnetclub

TEENS NETWORK (T-NET) CLUB

The Teens Network (T-Net) Club, established in November 2002, aims to integrate fresh and new initiatives to meet the needs of teenagers, aged 11 to 16 years old, through a wide array of meaningful and refreshing activities such as community service projects, adventure and sports, arts and cultural and educational programmes. Different interest groups ranging from sports to performing arts and hobby crafts are available at the eight Teens Network Clubs located island wide. These various interest groups provide avenues for teenagers to pursue interest with fellow like-minded teenagers and, in the process, to develop their talents and passion. More importantly, Teens Network Club’s programmes and activities create common space for teenagers regardless of race, religion and educational background to foster friendships and create bonds.

HELPING STUDENTS GAIN CONFIDENCE TO USE THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE BEYOND THEIR STUDIES

The English Channel (TEC) is partnering the Speak Good English Movement (SGEM) 2013 again to help further the movement's cause of encouraging better communication through the English language.

In conjunction with the launch of SGEM 2013 on 15th May 2013, TEC will start off with conducting a series of workshops during the June holidays to help needy students from community organisations such as Mendaki and SGEM student participants prepare for the new O Level syllabus.

Commenting on the importance of helping students for the O Level English exams, Ms Lorraine Tham, founder of The English Channel said, "The O Level English exam is the final key assessment for students before they move on to tertiary education. How well they perform affects their confidence and interest in using the language beyond their studies. Helping students do well in their O Level English exam gives them the confidence to use the language in their everyday lives, and the more they use the language, the better they will get at it".

THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

The English Channel is a Singapore-based education company that specialises in English Language training for foreign scholars and international students studying English as a second language. The company believes that language is the basis for meaningful communication and so our mission as English language specialists is to bridge cultures through the English language. The English Channel aims to nurture students who can think critically and use the English language to communicate meaningfully. TEC graduates top O and A Level students every year.

Founded by Lorraine Tham, an ex-MOE English Language teacher with over 10 years of experience as an educator, TEC was set up to allow her to pursue her vision of enabling people of different cultures and backgrounds to find a common ground through language. Lorraine is also one of the founding partners at School of Thought, an education-focused social enterprise.

NATIONAL STORY CHALLENGE

The National Story Challenge is an original improvisational storytelling event created by The Theatre Practice. Introduced in June 2006 as part of our Street Play programme for the Singapore Arts Festival Fringe, Story Challenge received an overwhelming response from both audience and participants alike. Story Challenge was officially launched as a nationwide storytelling competition in 2007.

This competition is open to both English and Mandarin speakers in primary and secondary schools in Singapore and welcomes students from every age group, race and background. Armed with only the “common topic” and a “unique condition” given only a few minutes before they go on stage, participants are required to create a story and bring it to life on the spot! There are no prepared scripts and no safety nets – it is a no-holds-barred contest of creativity, imagination and expression!

Leading up to the annual competition in February/March, we also provide road shows and training workshops to schools as part of our 3-pronged approach to expose youths to the National Story Challenge.

Branching out from school campuses, Story Challenge road shows was part of the Chinese Theatre Festival 2011, and was also showcased in several community centres in 2012-2013, as part of our efforts to reach out to the general public. In 2012, we performed over 30 shows and 20 workshops, reaching over 20,000 students and members of the public from all over Singapore. We have also embarked upon teachers’ training for MOE, in order to equip teachers with basic skills encompassing improvisation, performance and the Story Challenge format.

THE THEATRE PRACTICE

Established in 1965 and slightly older than Singapore by more than a month, The Theatre Practice has etched out a pivotal and long-cherished spot in local theatre and cultural history. We have painstakingly ridden out the storms of the last half-century, found ourselves indebted to the staggering contributions of generations gone by, and emerged stronger than ever.

Through the years, The Theatre Practice has marched forward upon the strength of our bilingualism, while pursuing the ideals of “staying firmly rooted to the local, expanding our awareness of the world at large, seeking commonalities yet accepting differences, and embracing one and all in harmony”. We continually introduce classic gems, while also encouraging original creations; we strive to inject local flavour in our pieces, while also keeping ourselves open to the infinite possibilities in the global arena. From the very beginning,

The Theatre Practice has been a pioneer in Arts Education, bringing countless workshops and performances into schools, and nurturing several generations of Singaporeans.

Forging into the new century, The Theatre Practice awaits fresh beginnings and challenges. We will spare no effort in presenting highly acclaimed quality productions, and see no limits in exploring original, experimental works – as we aim to steadily build upon the foundations of Singapore theatre. Let us welcome the future in eager anticipation, for there is much to look forward to!
